CITY AND DISTRICT
A Serious Fall.
Clarence Galloway, a carpenter, twenty-three years old, was seriously injured yesterday by falling from the third-story of a building on 9th street northwest between D and E streets. He fell the distance of three stories and sustained severe injuries to the face and body, as well as internal injuries. After his wounds were dressed at the Emergency Hospital the injured man was sent to his home, No. 2504 K street.

A Will Filled.
The will of the late Serena Hanson, dated January 10, 1895, filed yesterday afternoon, gives premises 303 New York avenue to Eleanor W. Ford, a daughter, and $10 a month to Frederick Hanson, a son. The residue of the estate is left to the daughter, she being enjoined to care for and educate her brother.

College Students Read Shakespeare.
A number of selections from the tragedies and comedies of Shakespeare will be presented at Willard Hall April 29 by the students of St. John's College. Mr. Vincent E. Lynch will have charge of the affair, and, in all, fifty-nine characters will be represented in costume. The selections will include scenes from "Julius Caesar," "Troilus and Cressida," "Romeo and Juliet," "Richard III," "Hamlet," "Henry VIII," "Taming of the Shrew," and "The Merchant of Venice." Among those who will take part in the presentation are Messrs. J. S. Galloway, J. Murphy, W. C. Diamond, T. C. Homiller, H. Bentley, L. P. Harlow, C. F. Johnson, A. J. Sheridan, E. N. Bowman, E. Scanlon, G. J. Garrison and L. P. McKenna.

False Pretences.
Yesterday afternoon Detectives Boardman and Quinn arrested a young man named William R. Thompson and locked him up on a charge of false pretences. He had been employed as manager of a lunch room, and after severing his connection with this firm he figured in several alleged swindles, so the police charge. This morning he was taken to the Police Court and held in one of the cells. He was charged that he obtained $3 from Mr. C. A. King by representing that he was solicitor for the advertisement of a medicine. Judge Miller heard the case and held the defendant for the action of the grand jury. John Young, a colored man, well known in police circles, was also charged with swindling. He was at one time a "capper" about the Police Court, and has since spent some time in jail. He was charged that he obtained $50 from Mary Spencer under the pretense that he would get her sister out of jail. Judge Miller also held him for the grand jury, and he was committed in default of $1,000 security.

Threatened His Wife.
A man named George Cobert was tried in the Police Court today for threatening his wife, and Judge Miller required him to give security or go down for ten days. Liquor is the cause of his trouble.

He Escaped.
George L. Cook, an inmate of St. Elizabeth's Asylum for the Insane, left that institution yesterday without permission, and when he arrived in the city he hired a hack and went out for a ride. When his bill amounted to $2.50, he refused to pay it. He was locked up. Last evening the bill was paid and he was returned to the asylum.

The Arlington Lease.
Judge Cox has authorized Messrs. William Corcoran Hill and Thomas Hitchcock, trustees of the estate of the late William W. Corcoran, to renew the lease of the Arlington Hotel held by Mr. E. Roessler. Mr. Roessler's lease expires the 30th of this month, and the trustees are authorized to renew the lease for five years at the present rental.

The Last Day.
Tomorrow, commencing at 10 a.m., will be the concluding sale of the fine furniture of the late President Arthur. All the fine furniture on the main floor will be sold, and at noon, the horses, wagon and harness. The sale is made by O. T. Thompson, 1239 N. J. ave. n.w. Messrs. Sloan & Co., auctioneers.—Adv.

SINGLE TAX ARGUMENT
Mr. Henry E. Davis Discussed the Question Earnestly.
Growth of Society and of Manhood—Reasons for the Prevailing Unrest—Question at Issue.
The announcement that Mr. Henry E. Davis, a well-known member of the District bar, would address the Single Tax Club attracted a fair-sized audience at a public meeting of the club, held at Butler's Exchange Hall, last evening. The subject of Mr. Davis' address, "A Just and Proper System of Taxation," was discussed by him for more than an hour in a forcible manner.

Mr. Davis was introduced to the meeting by Mr. Jackson H. Ralston, and, in beginning his address, declared that it used to be when one suggested something novel the world inquired, "Why should it be?" In the course of time the world so changed that today the inquiry is, "Why should it not be?" The world had advanced to that extent at least, Mr. Davis, and, consequently, it is seen only in historical treatises. About everything novel is right, argued Mr. Davis, and the American and English revolutions were cited as examples of the proposition. And, he asserted, every doctrine which is new and which is not a mere repetition of the old, is a new doctrine, and, he asserted, every doctrine which is new and which is not a mere repetition of the old, is a new doctrine, and, he asserted, every doctrine which is new and which is not a mere repetition of the old, is a new doctrine.

Society Discussed.
Society was discussed at some length. Mr. Davis declaring that the boasted civilization of the ancient nations, of Greece and of Rome, and of even Judea, had passed away, because their people built from the top to the bottom, instead of from the bottom to the top. Today, he contended, the foremost facts confronting society are the facts of unrest and of distrust. Those facts existed, not because man has not improved morally, but because he has not improved materially. He has not improved materially, he said, Mr. Davis, but he has improved morally. He has improved morally, he said, Mr. Davis, but he has improved materially. He has improved materially, he said, Mr. Davis, but he has improved morally.

Question at Issue.
The great question at issue, thought Mr. Davis, is, Who shall pay the cost of government? If it is to be paid by the people, it seems fair in theory that every individual should contribute his share to the support of government, but no equal system of taxation has ever been devised, and no plan devised which would have every one pay his or her share of such cost. Mr. Davis, cited among equals; and, to illustrate, he cited the case of the rich taxpayer and the poor one. The rich taxpayer, he said, pays a larger share of the cost of government than the poor one. The rich taxpayer, he said, pays a larger share of the cost of government than the poor one. The rich taxpayer, he said, pays a larger share of the cost of government than the poor one.

Unequal Wealth.
The ill from which society of today suffered were due, Mr. Davis believed, to the unequal division of wealth. The child born today is told, he said, that he can occupy no spot of earth, because the whole of it has been taken by those who preceded him. He is told that he is responsible for his coming, that what is right, and that if he does not like things as they are, he had better get off of the earth. His every effort in life, said Mr. Davis, is taxed, and taxed, too, for the benefit of those who came before him and pre-empted the earth. The single tax, he explained, Mr. Davis, says all that is wrong, that the new comer is entitled to a place on earth, and those who have pre-empted the earth should see that he has that right.

Mankind's Advance.
In conclusion, Mr. Davis sketched the history of mankind, declaring that every acre of land is traceable back to the primitive farmer who first held it. He gave no title, for he never was given any. He occupied the land by common consent, and if common consent were now no longer a valid title, he said, the individual occupation would not fall. There is no vested right in any form of property, he said, and if there is no vested right, there could have been no right in the land. There could have been no right in the land, he said, and if there is no vested right, there could have been no right in the land.

Another Charge of Street Obstruction.
To the Editor of The Evening Star:
The successful issue of the stand taken by The Star and the citizens in the vicinity in the matter of the Belt line cars monopolizing the public highway at 11th and O streets northwest is a matter for public congratulation.
Let them now (The Star and the interested citizens) turn their attention to the conditions existing at New York avenue and 11th street northwest, where the cars are very similar to those just abated at 11th and O streets, only more aggravated and aggravating.

Let the horses be not only exchanged, with their consequent noise and danger, but the cars positively obstruct a public highway, and, if they are not removed, daily. Whether there is any legal right inherent in street railways to do this is a question, but as the steam railroads and the street cars are both public highways, it would seem that a special law should be passed to regulate the crossing of the two. The writer, more than ten months ago, wrote the District Commissioners on this matter, but they have been slow in action, and great mystery, but as no apparent action has been taken by them looking to a removal of the cars, the writer was even then preparing to do things in a mysterious manner or else did not intend to do anything at all—probably the latter. Judge Miller heard the case and held the defendant for the action of the grand jury. John Young, a colored man, well known in police circles, was also charged with swindling. He was at one time a "capper" about the Police Court, and has since spent some time in jail. He was charged that he obtained $50 from Mary Spencer under the pretense that he would get her sister out of jail. Judge Miller also held him for the grand jury, and he was committed in default of $1,000 security.

Opposed to a Change.
To the Editor of The Evening Star:
"W. W. C." writes calling attention to the standing cars at 6th and New York avenue. I, for one, protest against taking this convenience from the people of Eckington and Brookland, who would have to walk from New York avenue to L street in all kinds of weather. This convenience was personally asked for by people living in the suburbs, who are already inconvenienced enough by the numerous transfers.

Walters Art Gallery, April 27th.
The last opportunity of the season to visit this famous gallery. Rate to Baltimore and return April 27 and 28 on all B. and O. R. R. trains, $1.25.
On all trains, April 27 and 28, good to return until the 29th.
The attention of those going out of town for any portion of the summer is called to the advertisement in another column of the Baltimore Press, of the sale of the beautiful situated, within thirty minutes of Boston, with a fine beach and attractive outlooks in every direction, it presents rare advantages to guests, whether seeking health or pleasure.

AMUSEMENTS.
The Grand Opera House.—Stuart Robson has recovered from his illness, and tonight will reappear at the Grand Opera House, presenting Buckstone's fine old comedy, "Leap Year," in which he plays the part of Dimple with that unctious and finish that has placed him in the front rank of American comedians.
"Coronet and Coin."—A full dress rehearsal of "Coronet and Coin," the new opera by Messrs. Fort, Smith, and MacLeod, took place at the Academy of Music last night. The opera will be given this evening and tomorrow night for the benefit of the Children's Country Home, and, judging from the sale of tickets, will be a most satisfactory affair financially. Those who saw the rehearsal last night can testify to its being most satisfactory in a musical way. The topics of the opera are, "The O'Connor and the other by Messrs.
